THE JUMEL ESTATE

en of the Trial Before Judge Barnard Unheard of Aerial Flights of Oratory-Mr. Charles O'Conor as a Witness-Amusing and Thrilling Scenes Curiously Intermingled-Decision for the Defendants.

and day's proceedings in the matter of the nel estate, before Judge Barnard, of the Supreme Court, was, if anything, more interesting than those f the first day. The court room was crowded to its utmost capacity. Mr. Charles O'Conor, with Mr. Carter, his associate counsel, was promptly in atice, and taking a seat by them was Mr. Nelson Chase, the defendant and de facto owner of the Jumei estate. Of course Count Johannes was on hand, in his customary dutetante gayety of style and manner. It was evident he fully felt the weight of the responsibility thrust upon him by his clients of the Jones family i their endeavor, as the alleged legal nears of Madame Jumel, to wrest this valuable estate from its present alleged pseudo owner. As Judge Barnard took hi meat on the beach there was profound silence.

RENEWAL OF PROCEEDINGS.

That kind of silence described as capable of being felt pervaded the court room, when Count Johannes, giving an egitating shake of his hyperion curis, and putting forth his right arm at an im-pressive oratorical agic, after the manner of Cicero in his opening oration against Cataline, rose to ad-dress the Court. Homer writes of swift-winged words, and so ran the initiatory sentences of the Count. It was a grandiloquently soaring exordium, the exact point of which it was difficult to see in the far stretch of its mazy height; but at length he came down to facts and figures, when the sense of his meaning began to be comprehended by the opposing

"Is not this a waste of time " mildly suggested Mr.

"it looks some like it," answered the Judge. "I adjourned the case over till to-day to allow the plaintiff's counsel opportunity to bring witnesses to estify as to the value of the Jumel estate at the time of the alleged conveyance by the plaintiffs to testiny as to the value of the Jumel estate at the time of the alleged conveyance by the plaintiffs to Mr. Chase of their right and title to the estate to show the disparity between the $40,000 paid them and the actual value at that time."

"I did summon a witness to appear here," interrupted the Count, "to testify on this very point, but he is not present for some reason or other. I will call, with permission of the Court, gentlemen whom I see present capable of stating the value of the property in question."

"You have a right if you comply with legal requirements to call as witnesses whom you please," said the Judge, "and need no permission of mine."

"Then I will first call Mr. John Anderson, your respected ather-in-law, sitting by your side," said the Count, "as to the value in less of the house and lot corner of Broadway and Laberty street, a portion of the original Jume estate,"

JOHN ANDERSON ON THE STAND.

Mr. John Anderson was accordingly requested to take the willness sland, which he property on the corner of Broadway and Plue street, he knew the property at the corner of Broadway and Liberty, that, in her life time, belonged to Madame Jumei; the latter property in 1866 was, in his opinion, worth $200,000.

the latter property in 1865 was, in his opinion, worth $200,0.0.0.

CHARLES O'CONOR AS A WINNESS.

"Mr. Charies O'CONOR Will please take the stand," spoke up the Count: in an energetic and mandatory tone of voice, as soon as Mr. Anderson finished his testamony. This unexpected summons excited general laughter, and even the right leatures of the great laughter, and even the right leatures of the great laughter, and even the right leatures of the great laughter, and even the right leatures of the great laughter, and even the right leatures of the great laughter, and even the right leatures of the great laughter, and the count, "is the owner of property on washington Heights not far from the Junel Mansson, and in this emergency I am withing to rely on his nonor as to the value of the Junel property situated there."

"I am perfectly willing to be a witness," said Mr. O'Conor, and he at once took the stand and the required oath.

Q. Are you acquainted with the Junel property on what used to be known at Harlem Heights, but now designated Washington Heights? A. I have a general vague idea of it. I could not walk around it. I know the house where Mrs. Junel died.

Q. Do you know how many acres there are? A. I have read the number in papers, but beyond this I do not know anything of my own knowledge. If I were not under oath I might give a guess, but as it is I do not like to.

Q. I iwill refresh from memory. There were 128

Q. May I be permitted ——? A. I don't ask any extension of favors at your hands.

Q. Well, then, now many acres in your Washington Heights property? A. On my nonor I can't tell, but I think between twelve and sixteen acres.

Q. What is the value of it. A. I don't know that either; it is not for sale at any price; you see I show myself no expert on this subject.

Q. Have you no idea what land is worth there?

A. I suppose I might give you extremes; I have heard it atterfy estimated as high as $20,000 an acre; I cannot go back to 1885; come to think of it I do

Q. What's the value of your own property? A. I have no vague thought of Hs value; I gave $250 an acre for H, except a little portion, for which I paid at the rate of $1,500 an acre.

ANOTHER ARBIAL PLIGHT AND QUICK DESCENT.
Having finished with Mr. O'Conor as witness the Count again opened his pinions and soared aloft to the extremest cerulean height of oratory.

"This is not the time for summing up," interposed
Mr. O'Conor, which brought the Count down from the dizzy altitude he had reached in the far away regions of the upper air. he had no witnesses to call but obtraced another lengthy affidavit and some turers on the court. In response to inquires of the regions of the upper air. He had no witnesses to call, but obtraced another lengthy affidavit and some letters on the court. In response to inquires of the Court he stated that the brst conveyance by the plainting of their rights in the Jamel estate to Mr. Chase was on Jely 29, 1865, and the second October 20, 1865. The will was dated November 12, 1866, and was set aside September 27, 1868. With this plainting counsel rested his case.

Sumating up By Mr. Carter now began summing up. He misisted that there was not the twentisth part of a shadow to prove the allegations of frand set forth in the complaint. Mere inadequacy of consideration was not a proof of frand. This was shown in all law courts. A barley corn was consideration enough. The plaintins did not come in there with clean hands. The allegations on the face of them were incredible and untrue and unworthy weight in a court of equity. They say that they believed the paper they signed was a compromise with John Howard Smith, and that it proved to be a deed of conveyance to Mr. Chase. Is it not the fact that for forty thousand dollars they parted with every right, thic and interest in the estate of Madame June? What difference is it whether this was a supposed compromise or deed of conveyance, now the will was set aside? Six weeks after they went after their forty thousand dollars and got it. They knew this was all they were to receive and they did not ask for a dollar more. Upon their own showing this complaint is a he from beginning to end. Whose he is 17.

Count-What do you shake your fist at me for? Mr. Carter—I have asked a question.

Count—I appeal to the Court, is that the way for a counsel to stake his fist at a member of the bar:

Mr. Carter—I have asked a question.

Count—I appeal to the Court, is that the way for a counset to shake his set at a member of the bar? Judge—it is only agrantive speaking.

Mr. Carter, resuming his opening, alluded to the manner in which the opposing counset became acquainted with Mr. Chase and the Joneses and how he launched out this suit. Next he referred to the absence of the plaintlins. The whole thing, he misted, looked queer. After dwelling at considerable length on this point he entered upon a review of the opposing counsel's opening, and began by characterizing the counsel in substance as a public pest and a disgrace to the profession. As to the money paid to the plaintins by Mr. Chase, he insisted that the latter showed a great liberality toward them, and in this connection gave a resume of the ittigagation breaking Madame Jamei's will. The question with the defendants was how much they stood a show of getting under this will and under any contingency. Their chains if put up in the market would not have brought $500. In the trial of the will case the jury found the conveyance in question perfectly valid. Contanding for the validity of this will were ten corporations of this city.

As dew drops from the lion's mane be cast of the imputation of blackmall burded at him. He was a white male, and did not belong to the inteenth amendment. (Laughter.) He proceeded to answer the preceding connects on. He boasted of chivairy in its nature, and upon this launched into a strain of sell-vindication and self-sinlegium of the most extraordinary character, and minging with the same most tenarity touching appeals to the members of the bar and to press to do ulin justice. In conclusion he said he never wrote out a him of its specines, but reflect on the Holy Spirit to tell him what he should say. This statement croked a general laugh, when he turned about upon the assembled arrong and pitched into them for scoffing at the Scripures and then sat down.

DECISION OF THE COUNT.

"This," said the Judge in giving his accis of theirs de bene esse. Madame Jumel left by will the bulk of her property to John Howard Smith and various religious societies. The plaintiffs not having been mentioned in the will, were no parties to the suit to set aside the will. The $40,000 paid them was not, under the circumstances, an inadequate consideration. This payment was made after the will had been set aside. John Howard Smith offered the plaintiffs $300,000 for their right and title to the estate, and they said they had niready sold their right. Not a particle of evidence proving the allegations of the complaint, and nothing to adiadcate upon, the Court could not deal with assumptions. As to the defendants keeping the plaintiffs witnesses away, there was also a total lack of evidence on this point. There was no evidence of injust procedure of counsel. The judgment of the Court, therefore, was for the defendants, and the plaintiffs to pay $10,000, the costs of defending the action.

On the rendition of the verdict Mr. Chase was warmly congratulated by a large host of friends present.

CITY POLITICS.

Matthew T. Brennun Bancer Raising in the Nineteenth Ward.

The friends of Tammany in the Nineteenth ward met last evening in goodly numbers at the corner of Fortieth street and Third avenue, to ratify the party ticket and raise a banner. The meeting was opened at eight o'clock by Mr. Stephen Gagen, who in a few well chosen words introduced Mr. William F. Howe. Mr. Howe was received with applause, and proceeded to deliver a speech. As a democrat he deprecated the action of the Young Democracy, who are doing all in their power to make the next Legislature at Albany radical. He then reviewed the records of the Tammany candidates, and contrasted them with their competitors on the other side. Mr. Howe made several good nits. Mr. A. S. Sullivan, Mr. Abel Hummel and others followed, and at nine o'clock the meeting quietly dispersed.

Jury.

A Grand Jury will be empanelled at the United States Circuit Court on Monday, before Judge Bene-dict, for the express purpose of anding indictments against 'repeaters," under the new Congressional law. Among those summoned to serve on it are William B. Astor, R. L. Stewart, the prominent sugar merchant; Jackson S. Schultz, President of the Union League Club; William Steinway, A. T. Stewart and other well-known citizens.

The Mozart party last evening made the following nominations:—For the Ninth Congressional district, Fernando Wood; for School Trustee of the Seventh ward, John Ford.

Sixteenth Assembly District.

A caucus of the Tammany delegates to the Sixreenth Assembly District Convention assembled last evening at O'Donnell's, in Third avenue. It has been decided to award the nomination to Major Orange H. Stevens. A meeting of Mr. Stevens' sup-porters was held afterwards at the Belvidere House, and resolutions were adopted endorsing the nomi-nation of Hoffman for Governor, Hall for Mayor and Brennan for Sheriff.

One of the largest political meetings ever held in Lockport assembled at Arcade Hall last evening. Judge Lamont presided, and the meeting was addressed by Senator Conkling and Seth Wakeman, the republican candidate for Congress in the Twen-ty-ninth district. The greatest enthusiasm pre-vaded, cannon were fired and bands of music paraded the streets.

With the exception of the nomination of ward officers, embracing the Aldermen, Supervisors, Constables, &c., and the nomination of the republican Assemblymen, the tickets of both parties in Kings courty may be said to be complete, and the contest between the candidates for the various offices fairly commenced. The campaign in Kings county differs this year from those of the past few years, from the fact that the democracy are united and present one instead of two tickets are united and present one instead of two tickets. There are a few "soreheads," however, in both parties, and some who feel slighted at being left out in the cold have announced themselves as the candidates of the people. When the votes are counted these "stump" candidates will realize how few people there were this fall who voted independent of the regular ticket.

Both parties have been careful to select men who were personally popular, men who are well known in the community, and the voter is rarely heart to were personally popular, men who are well known in the community, and the voter is rarely heard to inquire who the candidates are. Some bitter things, however, are being said of the candidates; all the faults and follies of their lives are being spread broadcast over the country, and it is a well established fact that stories never lose anything on the way. In delving into the early history of some of the candidates the startling discovery has been made that they once worked, and actually earned their living by the sweat of their brows. Now, as some of the candidates have not been guilty of any folly of this kind for some years past their reformation may be said to be complete.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22, 1870.

The Changes in the Cabinet. The President went to the Treasury Department this morning and had a long conference with Secretary Boutwell and Commissioner Delano, the result of which has been that it is now definitely determined that Mr. Delano will be appointed Secretary of the Interior. With regard to the appointment of Commissioner of Internal Revenue, it is stated by reliable authority that no decision has yet been made by the President.

The Release of the Hornet. LITTLE JACK SHEPPARD.

Pelonious Assault and Highway Robbery A Citizen Knecked Down and Robbed. On Friday night, about twelve o'clock, Mr. John Morrow, a well-to-do citizen, residing at No. 459 West Forty-third street, called into George Heindle's oyster saloon, at the corner of Ninth avenue and Forty-fourth street, where he had some oysters. On leaving this place he was followed out on the street by a young man who was present in the sastreet by a young man who was present in the saloon, and who had seen Morrow exhibit a large quantity of money at the counter when paying for the oysters, Mr. Morrow had gone about a block when he was assulted by a man whom he afterwards recognized as Patrick Finnen, of No. 426 West Fortysecond street, who struck him on the head a violent blow with some hard weapon—probably brass knuckles. Morrow fell to the sidewalk in a semi-insensible condition, and was then robbed of a watch and chain and some money, amounting in value to $150. He struggled hard to keep his property and was again badly beaten about the head and face so that he is now unable to leave his bed from the effects. After the robber had escaped he was found on the sidewalk by two officers of the Twenty-second precinct, who conveyed him to the station house. While on their way there Sergeant Murphy, of that station, met them and obtained from Mr. Morrow the particulars of his robbert. The sergeant then visited the saloon, and from the proprietor received information which enabled him to arrest Finnen, who was in bed at the time in his own house. When the prisoner was taken to Mr. Morrow's bed-side, that gentleman at once identified him as the person who had beaten and then robbed him. Yesterday Finnen was arraigned before Justice Bixby at the Yorkville Police Court, where he was committed to prison, without bail, to await the recovery from his injuries of Mr. Morrow. Finnen denies the charge most emphatically, and to give him his due, he is not a man who looks as if he were capable of such a crime as he is accused of. He says, however, Morrow is mistaken as to his identity. oon, and who had seen Morrow exhibit a large

FIRE IN CENTRE STREET.

A fire broke out yesterday afternoon in the building 100 Centre street. Originating in a barrel of rubbish under a stairway on the third foor, it was communicated to the shop of F. Fredderke, manufacturer of billhard tables, where it gained considerable headway. The damage in this shop was about $4,000; no insurance. The flames soon reached the paper box factory of John reached the paper box factory of John Held, who sufered damages to the extent of $2,000, which are covered by an insurance of $3,000 in the Hope of Rhode Island and Albany City Insurance Companies. The first floor is occupied by a dealer in ranges, whose stock, damaged to the amount of $500, was insured. The busement, occupied by Robert McArtney as a carpenter shop, was injured by water, the loss being about fifty dollars. The building is of brick, flye stories, and is owned by the Lorillard estate. It was damaged to the amount of about $2,000, which is covered by insurance.

THE FRENCH PATRIOTIC FAIR.

Although as yet the day of mauguration has not been fixed, there is no doubt about our soon having a French Patriotic Aid Fair in behalf of the French oldiers who have been wounded in the present struggle. The fair will be held in struggie. The fair will be held in the Armory of the Thirty-seventh regiment, where the German fair has now its head-quarters. A number of contributions have already been received, and a sufficient number of adies have volunteered to take charge of the stails. There will be twenty separate tables at least. Mme. Victor Piace is the President of the Ladies' Committee, and all communications addressed to her at the French Consulate General will receive attention.

SEFTON, LIVERPOOL, Oct. 4, 1870. Mosers, Allcock & Co., Sing Sing :-

Three years ago my daughter Jane was taken with seven pain to the hip, and her foot was drawn up five inches from the ground. I called in a physician, who said she had "hip lose her. This was about a year ago, and then she could not nove a step without crutches. About this time we were adpiled it over the hip joint, and it gave her immediate relief. Since then she has used about seven, and she has now for two munits walked to school and back every day, and the distance is one and a half mile, and this without any fucon venience. Her mother and I look upon the cure as almost miracle. I am, very respectfully, yours,

TOSS OF APPETITE.

DU BARRY'S REVALENTA has acted wonderfully on me: my strength is coming back, and a new life like that of youth animates me. My aspetite, which for several years was quite gone, has come back wonderfully, and the presure and heerafgle pains in my head, which during forty years had become chronic, have left me entirely.

DAVID RUFF, Land owner, BARE (Bas-Rhin), June 9, 1861.

CURE NO. 48,889.
Of fifty years' indescribable agony from dyspepsia, nervousness, asthma, cough, constitution, flatulency, spaams, sickness, and romiting, by DU BARRY'S REVALENTA, ARABICA FOOD.—MARIA JOLLY, of Ling, near Dusy, Norrolk, England.

DROPSY.

I thank God and yourself. I believe my little girl, who was suffering from dropsy, would not be alive now had it not been for DU BARRY'S REVALENTA FOOD. She is now free from all symptoms of dropsy and very hearty at her meals.

Naples, April 17, 1862.

In consequence of a liver complaint I was wasting away for seven years, and so debilitated and nervous that I was unable to read or write. I was also affelded with a nervous palpitation, bad digestion, constant sleeplessness and the most intolerable nervous agistion, which prevented even my sitting down for hours together. I felt dreadfully lower spirited, and all intercourse with the world had become painful to me. Many medical men had prescribed for me in value in perfect despair I took DU BARRY'S REVALENTA FOOD, and lived on this delicious nutriment for three months. The good God be praised, it has completely revived me. I am myself again, and able to make and receive visits, and resume any secual position. Accept, sir, the assurance
